 ASD affects children of all racial, ethnic, and social economic groups
 Early identification helps children get the services they need.

Agency Spotlight
 In 2015, there were more than 1,100 opioid-related deaths, a 73 percent increase from 2005. Governor Cooper said, "Opioid addiction is devastating families across the nation." He indicated that, "This is a uniquely challenging crisis for our communities and will require a new level of collaboration between law enforcement, treatment-providers, and those in recovery." As an agency that offer medication management, Primary Health Choice is committed to joining in the fight to help combat this ongoing crisis that is plaguing our communities. Dr. Erich Smith has been providing medication management services for our agency for approximately 6 years. Dr. Erich is doing his part at our agency to combat the ongoing problems that many North Carolinians are facing across the state with substance abuse problems. Some controlled substances along with therapy have been used as best practice standards to treat many of our patients diagnosed with a variety of mental health diagnosis. However, with substance abuse on the rise, many challenges present when prescribing needed medications to treat these diagnosis. To assist with some of these challenges, Dr. Erich has begun entering in all prescribed controlled substances in a State wide data base that alerts other prescribers of the medication his patients are being prescribed. This will assist with decreasing the frequency of patients going to multiple prescribers to obtain medications, also known as "doctor-shopping." Dr. Erich has been consistent with entering information into this state-wide system and the agency thanks him for his ongoing efforts.
